STRIKE AGAINST GAS TAX

What would happen in the United States and Canada if motor vehicles were taken off the highways and streets, was indicated not long ago in Switzerland where a one-day strike was staged against increasing gasoline taxes.
Notwithstanding favorable weather, according to a report of the American Petroleum Institute's industries committee, traffic was reduced to a minimum. Practically all private cars were kept off the roads. These which did appear bore placards reading, "Driving because of Necessity." A few families appeared on the roads with horses hitched to their wagons.
Every type of business suffered. Heavy losers, of course, were the hotel owners whose business is so dependent on the tourist trade. Imagine, if you can, the stagnation that would afflict business if motor vehicles were withdrawn from the highways for a single day. —B-33

BLAIRMORE COUPLE FETED

Observing their golden wedding anniversary at the home of their daughter, Mrs. P. Battel, on February 4th, Mr. and Mrs. Alphons Dancosine were recipients of congratulations and gifts. At the reception, attended by upwards of sixty people, His Worship Mayor E. Williams acted as master of ceremonies. Presents were made to the aged couple, including a bouquet of golden mums in a golden lined basket, symbolic of the event.

Miss Julia Lenglen, who is a second cousin of Suzanne Lenglen, famous tennis star, became the bride of Alphons Dancosine at a ceremony celebrated at Sulaimans, France, on February 4th, 1888.
Six children were born to the couple, of whom the following survive: Clement and George, of Blairmore; Mrs. P. Battel, of Blairmore; Robert in the States; and Marcel, of Barona. A daughter, Mrs. Eugene Excoffin, passed away in Bellevue in 1915.
Mrs. Dancosine's sister, Mrs. Zabor, with her husband and two children, of Diamond city, were among the outsiders present.

The Enterprise joins with their many friends in extending congratulations.

TEACHER SHORTAGE

Statement that shortage of teachers threatens in Alberta, as made by Deputy Minister McNally to the annual convention of the Alberta School Trustees' Association, will come as quite a surprise to Albertans who have been led to believe we have been suffering from a surplus of qualified teachers, for many of whom no job could be found.
At a time when the cry is that there is nothing for our boys and girls, who have finished their high school courses, to do, that they haven't a chance to get employment, it will be good news, to learn that one vocation is opening up to them. Any shortage should be quickly filled. —Lethbridge Herald.

BONSPIEL HERE NEXT WEEK

RENEWAL ALBERTA LOANS SHOWN IN ORDER-IN-COUNCIL

Ottawa, Feb. 5.—Renewal of $4,478,000 in loans to Alberta under the Relief Act was disclosed in an order-in-council tabled in the house of commons on Thursday by Finance Minister Dunning.
Three loans, totalling the above amount, were due to mature Feb. 1, Feb. 9 and March 30. They were consolidated as from Feb. 1 and renewed for one year, the federal government accepting Alberta treasury bills securing interest at three per cent as security.

HANDWRITING ON WALL

Mr. Aberhart and his followers and advisers have staged all sorts of manoeuvres. They have erected straw men and valiantly knocked them over, but they have not been able to accomplish what they promised to do. Now it is becoming evident that the people of Alberta are awakening to the fact that the only real achievements of the Aberhart administration have been attacks on the constitution of Canada and the rights of individual citizens and causing Alberta to be regarded by most of the rest of the world as the happy hunting ground for wild-eyed demagogues. One wonders if Alberta's prophetic premier can read the handwriting on the wall.—Nelson News.

At the annual meeting of the ratepayers of the Lundbreck School District, held recently, S. J. Purdy was elected trustee. The personnel of the board now stands as: J. F. Smith, Charles Patton, S. J. Purdy, and Mrs. J. Walters as secretary-treasurer.

The personnel of Blairmore's 1938 council and school board is as follows: Mayor Enoch Williams, Councillors R. Perensini, E. Morgan, A. Olsen, E. Womersley, A. Pagnucco and D. Ennis; school trustees, S. G. Bannan, J. Krokosky, A. Bosetti (chairman), M. Krokosky and S. McDowell.

You notice that the touring Scottish curlers do not use the ordinary straw broom. Instead they use a sort of mop or brush contrivance, which can serve many purposes. They may use it to curl, to sweep the floor, brush their teeth, their hair or their clothes, and on special occasions use them to scour dishes.

The Anglican hall was the scene of a very pretty shower on Monday night last, in honor of Miss Clara Hughton, at which about thirty guests were present. The evening was spent in playing what, the prize winners being, first, Mrs. T. McKay; second, Mrs. J. Middleton; consolation, Mrs. Archer. After what the guest of honor was presented with many beautiful and useful gifts, followed by a very dainty luncheon.

John E. Dick, who passed away at Fernie, and whose remains were laid to rest Thursday of last week, was a well known and prominent business man of that city. He was but 48 years of age, and death resulted from hemorrhage caused by a fall on ice. His firm owned and operated the King Edward and Waldorf hotels, the Fernie and Midway garages, and several timber camps. The remains were laid to rest at Fernie on Thursday afternoon of last week, with one of the largest funerals in the history of Fernie.

AN ELECTION AVOIDED

Nominations on Monday resulted in two for two vacancies on the school board, and three for three vacancies on the council being returned by acclamation as follows:
S. G. Bannan and Joe Krokosky, re-elected school trustees; Delbert Ennis, Ed. Womersley and E. Pagnucco, to the town council.

RADIO LICENSES

By tacking on an extra fifty cents to the existing license for owning a receiving set the Federal Government will increase its already impressive income from this source by one-fourth or 25%. We are told the money will be used for the purpose of providing better programs, better artists, and better stations. All well and good! Nobody is going to get out under the collar about an extra fifty cents provided we do get extra benefits. But we do wish that the Department would see fit to do something about the question of interference. We are told that the Department has cars especially equipped to detect this nuisance, but that is about all that is done about it. Although complaints have been made in the past, we have never heard of one of these cars operating in these parts. —Bassano Recorder.

SOCIAL CREDIT DYNAMICS

According to a bulletin issued from the Allnutt office in Edmonton, "Social Dynamics" is defined as "that science which enables those who serve the people in any area to learn from them what they want in the order of precedence in which they want it. Every force has been used against it without any other apparent effect than delaying its triumph." There isn't a professor living can see any sense through that idea. And then Professor Expert Powell goes on to say: "For that reason, if no other, searching out ways and means of finding, rectifying, recording and implementing the will of the people is to be recommended to those whose duties as democratic politicians of every kind entails understanding of such matter." Great stuff, isn't it!

Fve hundred and fifty-four trustees attended the recent convention in Calgary—the most important meeting in the province, as far as the minister of education was concerned, and according to reports published, "it must needs be very important business that would warrant the absence of the minister of education from this important gathering." Just another evidence of the fact that he can no longer face the music.

Tabulating Canada's trade is a mammoth job from whatever angle it is regarded, judging by the official statistics issued in the name of the Canadian government. For imports alone 308 pages are required in the last issue giving the quarterly report of the trade of Canada; and these imports range all the way from toothbrushes to works of art on which Canadians spend money abroad irrespective of whether or not they are produced in this country, and in the production of which men and women are employed.

George Pattinson has been chosen mayor of Coleman for a fourth consecutive term by acclamation. An election will be held Monday next for school trustees and councillors, when the following candidates will be in the running: for council—Fred Antrobus and J. M. Allan (both seeking re-election); J. Atkinson, Frank Serak and W. J. White; for school board—R. M. Greenhalgh (seeking re-election), John James Hadley, Harold Chamberlain and John Salvador. Mayor Pattinson has been on the council for fourteen years, six as councillor and eight as mayor.

NEWS FROM EDMONTON

(By T. B. Windross)

Edmonton, Feb. 7.—Social Credit members of the legislature sat in formal and informal caucuses early this week, getting ready for the opening of the legislature session on Thursday.

The main question before the caucus seemed to be: what bills could be introduced into the house, apart from the routine minor amendments, in order to give the electorate an impression of progress?
The opposition members, meanwhile—including ex-Social Crediters and the Independent Social Crediters—were getting ready to make observations and ask some obvious questions about events of the past four months. In their official capacity as breakers on the government in power, for instance, these opposition members wanted to know what the government has done in view of the January highway report which condemned extravagance and inefficiency in Hon. W. A. Pallow's department. How much money out of the public treasury has been spent by the government and the Social Credit board in spreading party propaganda both inside and outside Alberta; how much has been handed to Social Credit "agents" (English, French, Italian and staff in "substance allowances, salaries and expenses; what all those men have done for the province in return; and whether Albertans save any nearer a Social Credit system than they were three years ago when the party election campaign began.

It is almost certain now that new sources of revenue—to put it bluntly more taxes—are to be suggested to the legislature by the government this session. There is strong indication that the sales tax will be applied again, it having been shelved last August (it seemed then that a provincial general election was about to be staged) after having been in effect for 16 months. When it was removed last summer, Provincial Treasurer Low referred to its removal as being, in effect, the first Social Credit dividend. It appears now that the government is going to ask for its dividend back again.

"Provincial officials" who were not named were quoted by Edmonton papers last week as saying that the government was aiming at an "economic boost," stating: "We are checking over proposed expenditure with a view to effecting economies wherever possible, while avoiding at the same time any impairment of the efficiency of the government services."

The province's educational system, which is supposed to be under the direct control of Mr. Aberhart himself, is facing serious problems now which the legislature will be asked to consider. The Alberta school trustees' association, meeting in Calgary last week for its annual convention, faced serious questions of cash interest to every taxpayer and of vital interest to every parent and every child. The convention asked the government to assume 70 per cent of the cost of education, and to suspend plans for establishment of more enlarged school districts pending some sign of benefit to offset the bad results shown from those enlarged districts already established.

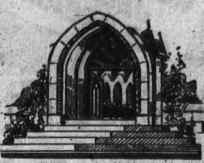

Mr. Aberhart himself, in a broadcast a little while ago, drew public attention to one of the most serious problems facing Alberta education: now the fact that payments of school teachers' salaries are in arrears to an amount which Mr. Aberhart himself estimated at a quarter of a million dollars.

No person in the province, whatever his political belief, has risen to dispute Mr. Aberhart's assertion that the problem of unpaid school teachers' salaries must be solved. Exact figures on the number of teachers affected is lacking. But it has been estimated that there are 100 of them, each of them being owed an average of $500.

It has been suggested, though not by the premier, that Mr. Aberhart himself, as the minister of education responsible for the school system, might be willing to contend himself with only twice the amount of salary he ever received before he became head of the government, and contribute the rest of his present payments from the public treasury to unpaid school teachers. That would settle accounts of four or five, at least. It has been suggested, too, that G. F. Powell and D. Byrne, imported Social Credit "experts" might be sent back to England, and so save the provincial treasury enough money to pay off at least 15 more teachers during the course of a year. If the "substance allowances" of the Social Credit board members were cut off, another 40 teachers could be paid.

The real cost of the party propaganda which is being carried on now at the expense of taxpayers will only be revealed when it is brought out in the public accounts committee or perhaps by auditors for some later government, but it is certain that many a teacher could be paid a living wage out of the money being spent in this propaganda.

The correspondent had a taste of Social Credit propaganda last week when Hon. Lucien Maynard's own weekly paper, "Today and Tomorrow," recently named the official organ of the Social Credit League, published an article under the purported signature of this correspondent. It was captioned: "Social Credit offer a solution, says this well known commentator on progressive affairs."

Well, this "well-known commentator on progressive affairs" hereby re-iterates that article published by Mr. Maynard, and the views it expresses. More, he has placed the matter in the hands of a lawyer to determine by what right his name was used over an article which Mr. Maynard knows very well does not represent his present views in the slightest degree. During the first 20 months of Mr. Aberhart's office-holding, this correspondent, like practically everyone in Alberta at the time, was sympathetic toward the premier and his claims, because it was felt that Mr. Aberhart, having promised he would produce a new era of prosperity for the province and should be given every assistance. During those 20 months, on occasion, this correspondent even wrote an exposition of Mr. Aberhart's views for publication at the premier's request. But the knowledge which this correspondent thereby obtained of Mr. Aberhart and his Social Credit theories made further faith in his claims impossible for this writer.

For Mr. Maynard's information, this correspondent hereby states that professionally he does nothing but state facts, and that he has no editorial views to express. But, if he were to express his personal views, he would state that Social Credit is a myth which has been very profitable in cash returns to Mr. Aberhart, to Major Douglas, and to members of the Social Credit board, to the alleged "experts," and to the legislature members who were elected on the Social Credit platform. He would state that this present government's attacks on newspapers and the banks were launched and are being continued for one purpose only—to hide the Social Credit fake. This is just a private opinion, of course. But this "well-known correspondent" is not the only citizen of Alberta who holds

BILL FOR DEFENCE WILL BE LOWER THAN LAST YEAR

Ottawa.—Canada's defence bill for 1938-39 will be $2,000,000 less than last year, despite a proposal to purchase two new destroyers for the Royal Canadian Navy.

Expenditures by the department of national defence totalling $34,034,364 compared with $36,034,371 last year, are outlined in the estimates tabled in the House of Commons by Finance Minister Dunning.

Purchase of the two new destroyers will bring Canada's naval strength up to six fighting ships. They will be the "Comet" and the "Comet" and will be bought from the British admiralty for delivery in the summer.

The increased destroyer strength will be assigned to duty on the Pacific coast. At present two ships are on the Atlantic and two on the Pacific. When the new destroyers arrive four will be stationed on the west coast and two on the east.

Naval service is the only branch of the department to receive increased appropriations in the new estimates. The increase amounts to $1,938,311 and there is also a slight increase for departmental administration.

Curtailment in the total departmental vote comes through reductions of $2,732,216 for militia services, $1,017,000 for air services and $200,000 for general non-military expenditures.

The estimates are to provide for a continuation of the defence program laid down a year ago, the object of which was to provide a system of coast defence for Canada, concentrating first on air defence, secondly to naval and thirdly to repairing deficiencies in equipment of the militia services.

In militia services further steps will be taken to repair equipment deficiencies, it was learned from the department. The amounts provided for the training of both permanent and non-permanent forces will also be increased.

Provision is made for the purchase of additional aircraft similar to those bought last year and improvements are contemplated in air facilities on the Atlantic coast. The second stage of fortification works on the Pacific begun last year is provided for.

A departmental statement said: "The reduction in the total appropriation as compared with last year is accounted for by the following facts:

"1. The building construction program of last year is now well advanced to completion;

"2. A smaller number of aircraft is being purchased;

"3. It is not anticipated, having regard to the problem of obtaining deliveries, that so large a sum will be required for militia stores during the coming fiscal year.

"Substantial reductions under these three headings are partially offset by increases to provide for management of the naval and air force establishments."

Lowered Into Gas Well

Chief Driller Recovered Drilling Bit 120 Feet From Surface

Calgary.—"It was just like going down in an elevator," said William Herron, chief driller of Okalta No. 7, in the south Turner Valley oil field, describing how he was lowered 120 feet into the well to recover a drilling bit that had broken off.

Herron was lowered on the well's bailer with a safety rope around his waist. The rope was held by members of the surface crew "just in case I fell off the bailer," he explained.

In less than an hour he accomplished a job that might have taken weeks of "fishing" to locate the lost bit—a large piece of pipe.

He had one worry. He feared the treacherous gravel walls would cave in.

Facing Food Shortage

People On North Channel Island Cut Off By Storms

London.—The 200 inhabitants of Rathlin island in the North Channel between northern Ireland and Scotland were threatened with starvation after being cut off by three weeks of continuous storms.

Plight of the inhabitants became alarming as gales and high seas continued to batter the British Isles, preventing food ships from reaching them.

World's Largest Ship

New Liner To Be Named After Queen Elizabeth

London.—The world's largest ship, an 86,000-ton liner now known as "No. 552" at the John Brown and Company yards at Clydebank, will be named after Queen Elizabeth at its official launching, scheduled for Sept. 27.

Queen Elizabeth has assented to a request the new vessel, the Cunard-White Star Line's sister ship of the liner Queen Mary, be named in her honor, and will christen the vessel at its launching.

It will be the first time any ship christened by living British queens. The launching takes place four years and one day after the launching of the Queen Mary, Sept. 26, 1934.

Shipping circles expect the new ship to be the largest and fastest in the world. Its gross tonnage will be about 5,000 tons more than the Queen Mary and 2,000 more than the French liner Normandie, which holds the speed record for Atlantic crossings.

Dredging has begun for an entrance to the dock where the Queen Elizabeth will be fitted after launching. It was expected other dredging will be done at the foot of the ways to facilitate launching. A sum of £10,000 ($500,000) has been set aside by the Clyde trust to meet expenditures required by further river improvements.

That part of the river, Beardmore Bend, which the Queen Mary scraped when going downstream is to be widened and the bank on the north side of the Clyde at this spot will be cut away.

New Bill Introduced

Would Give Government More Control Over War Supply Exports

Ottawa.—Added power to control traffic out of Canada in munitions and war supplies would be vested in the government by adoption of a bill introduced in the House of Commons on motion of Transport Minister Howe. The bill, given first reading, would empower the governor-in-council to prohibit export from Canada of all classes of war supplies in vessels of Canadian registry.

There was no discussion on the measure and details of its purpose and administration were left for debate in the house. It supplements a measure of arms export control now vested in the government by amendments to the customs act last year.

Under existing legislation it is necessary that all exports of munitions and implements of war be under license from the federal government.

This gives the governor-in-council power to say whether or not these materials should be sent to any particular country, so far as consignments from Canada is concerned. In addition an order-in-council was passed last August prohibiting export of munitions and armaments to Spain.

The bill covers every material that could conceivably be converted into war materials, including victuals for man and beast. The provision in the customs act amendment covers only actual munitions and machinery of war.

Concentrate At Singapore

Testing Britain's Newly Completed Naval Fortifications

Singapore.—Fleet scouting planes sped over the China Sea to locate approaching "enemy" warships as a mimic battle testing Britain's newly completed naval fortifications began. The manoeuvres are to test Singapore's endurance in the event of siege.

Behind the mangrove swamps lining the coast were Singapore's 15-inch coastal defence guns and 10,000 men lay in wait at strategic points.

Twenty-five warships, drawn from the East Indies and China stations and from the Royal Indian Navy, and 210 Royal Air Force planes participated.

Danger Is Increasing

Moscow.—Four Russian scientists reported by wireless a six-day storm split the ice floe on which their north pole weather observation camp has drifted for eight months. The Soviet northern sea route department rushed preparations to rescue the scientific party.

R.A.F. Pilot Killed

Hallinford, Middlesex, Eng.—Pilot Mervyn Seymour Bockett, of the Royal Air Force, was killed during R.A.F. manoeuvres here when his plane fell with some force rescuers had to dig 13 feet to extricate his body.

MOVE IS MADE TO BAR AIR RAIDS ON SPANISH CITIES

London.—Political rivalries were forgotten as parliament grouped behind a move for an international agreement to bar air raids on the cities in Spain.

Public opinion, horrified by attacks on civilians in Spain and the far east, approved the government's offer to use its influence to obtain an accord between the Spanish factions to cease such raids.

The House of Commons unanimously adopted a motion presented by the Labor opposition, and subsequently given government co-sponsorship, appealing for an international pact to abolish bombardment of non-combatants.

Proposed by Morgan Jones, Labor, the resolution branded the bombardments "crimes against humanity." It put the commons on record as believing "the growing horror against aerial bombardment of defenceless citizens should be expressed in an international agreement to co-operate in its prohibition," and urged the government to "exert its influence to this end."

R.C.M.P. Command

Commissioner Wood May Succeed Col. G. L. Jennings

Ottawa.—Deputy Commissioner S. T. Wood took command of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police with the retirement of Col. G. L. Jennings, former deputy commissioner. Col. Wood has become acting commissioner during the illness in Toronto of Major-General Sir James MacBrien, head of the force.

Should Sir James find it desirable to retire, Col. Wood will succeed him, it was learned. It is known that Sir James has been contemplating retiring soon even before he became ill and recent changes he inaugurated with this end in view.

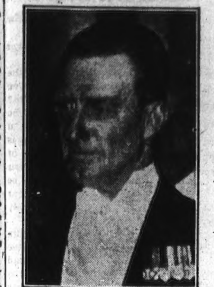

No official information was available as to whether Sir James would resume his duties for a time and before retiring.

Oil Investigation

Problems Arising From Production In Turner Valley

Ottawa.—B. V. LeSueur, vice-president of Imperial Oil Company, representing Imperial and Royalite Oil Companies, told the tariff board he had no doubt the 42 per cent. production quota fixed for Turner Valley, Alberta, oil producers would be increased as soon as the market could absorb more.

Imperial and British-American Oil Companies had already reached contracts for the purchase of Montana crude oil, formerly used in western Canada refineries, LeSueur said in his evidence as the board continued its inquiry into problems arising from production in Turner Valley.

It was important to maintain a position where the producer could be paid a price to enable them to pursue further development work in the field, he said. This balance should be maintained until the potentialities of the field were definitely known.

Gordon Ross, Moose Jaw, Sask., representing a consumers' co-operative, urged the board to find the reason for the great difference in price of gasoline in Montana and western Canada.

Gasoline was being offered in Montana at five cents a wine gallon in carload lots, said Ross. Imperial in Regina was asking 15 cents or more for the imperial gallon.

"We're prepared to submit our cost statements to the board, broken down and in detail," said LeSueur. He said the cost statements would be submitted confidentially. The company's 1937 statement would be ready shortly.

Robert Wilkinson, Turner Valley producer, told the board he had been refused carriage of his oil in pipe lines of the Royalite Company unless he signed a contract agreeing to sell the oil to Royalite. LeSueur said he could not understand this. It was not his company's policy to refuse to carry oil.

New Senator Sworn In

Ottawa.—When the senate resumed its sittings, Duncan Marshall was sworn in and took his seat in the upper chamber. He was sponsored by Liberal leader Dandurand and Senator A. C. Hardy.

President Of Legion

Col. W. W. Foster To Direct Affairs For Next Two Years

Fort William, Ont.—With Col. W. W. Foster, Vancouver, elected to direct the affairs of the Canadian Legion for the next two years, the association proceeded to the choosing of its remaining officers. Colonel C. Basil Price, Montreal, was elected Dominion chief, vice-president and Alex Walker, Calgary, second vice-president.

Officers re-elected were A. E. "Jack" Moore, Winnipeg, Dominion chairman, and Major Milton F. Gregg, Ottawa, Dominion honorary treasurer.

Addressing the delegates briefly, on accepting the presidency of the Legion, Colonel Foster emphasized the extent to which the association had grown in prestige among the people of Canada. It was now the largest body in the country, dedicated to the cause of national service.

MAKES PLEA FOR FREE TRADE AREA FOR THE WEST

Ottawa.—A free trade area for the prairie provinces where tariffs would not be imposed was urged in the House of Commons by Gordon Ross (Lib., Moose Jaw).

Protesting tariffs, the Saskatchewan free trader said, were impoverishing western Canada. At the same time eastern Canada believed tariffs were both helpful and necessary. The only logical remedy was to impose a system of regional tariffs—permit the east to retain them and leave the prairies a free market.

"The west demands justice," exclaimed Mr. Ross at the conclusion of a general onslaught on the principle of protective tariffs. "We demand a free trade area in the three prairie provinces."

No matter what government was in power, or what party, it seemed impossible to get a tariff that suited both the east and the west, Mr. Ross said. If the tariff was low enough to satisfy the west, it was too low to please the manufacturers of the east.

"The west cannot carry on under a protective system," Mr. Ross declared, "and the west has no right to place obstacles in the way of the rest of Canada. If we have come to the place where advantages to one part of the country are great disadvantages to another part, there must be some way to straighten it out."

"Under a free trade area, it cannot be denied the west would grow, prosper and help to develop the rest of Canada," he argued. But if tariffs were retained, a wedge would be driven in confederation and the whole country would suffer.

The only logical solution was for the prairie provinces to be allowed to become a free market and the east to retain protective tariffs.

Western Canada had to "cut its protection costs or quit." It could not go on paying 25 or 30 per cent. extra for the materials and implements it needed by reason of the tariff.

"If protective tariff is driving a wedge into confederation," Mr. Ross declared, "I don't know how long it will take but sooner or later that will come. I am not advocating it. I am trying to straighten it out."

Western Canada was laboring under conditions of injustice and difficulty which could not be long endured. People of the west were British and never in history had British people remained passive under unjust burdens.

"We demand justice," he said. "We demand a free trade area in the three prairie provinces of Canada."

Mrs. George Black (Cons., Yukon), followed and said she was familiar with conditions in western Canada and interested in Mr. Ross' speech.

"He was either very brave or very foolishly," she remarked. "Perhaps time alone would help."

Without referring directly to Premier T. D. Pattullo's proposal to merge the Yukon with British Columbia, Mrs. Black said the facts about the Yukon were misunderstood. All the customs revenue for the Yukon was collected at Vancouver and showed in returns from there. All the Yukon's trade went through British Columbia. The telegraph system of northern British Columbia, maintained by the federal government, was charged to the Yukon and this was not right.

Yukon would be a "very fat plum" for British Columbia. It had long been a "happy hunting ground for British Columbia."

"I am sick and tired of hearing about the great expense the Yukon is to the federal government," she declared. "If the truth were known the Yukon for years has paid the federal treasury."

Says War Exists

Japanese Spokesman Admits Hostilities With China

Tokyo.—Foreign Minister Koki Hirota told the Japanese diet (parliament): "There is no Chinese central government recognized by Japan. A state of war exists between the two countries."

Thus far in the seven months of Chinese-Japanese hostilities Japan has declared war on China. The foreign office spokesman refused to comment on Hirota's statement, saying it spoke for itself.

It was reported the Japanese government instructed its charge d'affaires at Ottawa to make representations to the Canadian government concerning the attempted bombing of the steamship Mye Maru at Seattle by two Canadians last month.

ASKS FOR PROBE IN REFERENCE TO CAMPAIGN FUNDS

Ottawa.—A parliamentary investigation of Conservative Leader Bennett's charge that campaign funds were being assessed against government contractors, was urged in the House of Commons by Rene Pelletier (S.C., Peace River).

Campaign funds crossed the house debates several times, with M. J. Colbourne (C.B.C., Regina) suggesting the time had come when political parties should be forced to publish the source of all contributions.

Campaign funds first were mentioned when Mr. Pelletier, the baby member of the house, asked the government on the orders of the day if it intended probing the Conservative leader's charges.

At that time, Mr. Bennett said electoral corruption had never been so rampant in Canada as at present and that levies, not contributions, were being taken from government contractors who were approached by political organizations. The practice extended to the Canadian National Railway, he said.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King, replying for the government, said no specific charges of corrupt election practices had been made and no petition presented for an investigation. He reminded the house the law stipulated any voter could deposit $1,000 with a supreme court judge and seek an investigation, or 25 people could petition parliament. If an inquiry, after depositing $1,000.

This reply apparently did not satisfy the Peace River member who returned to the question later. He urged setting up a house committee to investigate the Bennett charges and remove all stigma from the honor of parliament.

"I do not believe any cabinet minister, past or present, would permit such a thing to go on," Mr. Pelletier stated, arguing the Conservative leader should be placed in the position of proving his charges.

It was true there could be an investigation if $1,000 were posted, Mr. Pelletier agreed, but few men, unlike Mr. Bennett, had that much money. In addition, it was the Conservative leader who claimed to have the facts in his possession.

There was no reply from the government benches to the Pelletier suggestion. Since he made the charges, Mr. Bennett had made no further reference to them and the government, apart from the prime minister's statement, has ignored them.

Douglas Ross (Cons., Toronto-St. Paul) wondered if the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation was becoming an agency for the very thing it was created to remove from the air. He said if CBC was becoming an agency for American advertising, it was a serious misuse of public facilities and public money.

If a Canadian newspaper published Sunday editions to collect advertising revenue, it would be prosecuted, Mr. Ross continued. Apparently CBC held itself above this law. He understood $200,000 in newspaper and periodical advertising was affected by the recent move of CBC to accept American programs.

MORE ACTION AND LESS TALK

Remarks of the Hon. William Aberhart on Sunday can leave nobody in doubt concerning a rising insurgency in the Social Credit movement of Alberta. Two years ago, Social Credit members were unanimous in all things. Any dissenter who had dared to cast doubts on the ability of the leader to accomplish those things of which he spoke, would have been a fit subject for a lynching party, but today the situation has changed.

For the titular head of the Alberta Social Credit League to castigate publicly the so-called grouchoes and critics within the movement is to suggest that in recent months the Premier has been receiving an increasing number of unfriendly letters and resolutions from his membership. The situation has reached the point where it can no longer be ignored, yet, beyond a spirited condemnation directed to the unknown insurgents the Premier makes no effort to change his course or answer the criticism. Instead, the Aberhart hirlings carefully sift out the more pleasing communications for radio consumption in an effort to bulldoze the public into believing that, for the first time, Albertans have a government which is doing big things in a bigger and better way.

The lengthy epistle read Sunday by Cyril Hutchinson following the near Bergen-McCarthy dialogue between the master voice and his foil, was a masterpiece of innuendo. The communication contained a mass of false conjectures, yet the Premier offered it as just one more reason why the Social Credit government should remain in office.

One can only assume that, having failed to produce basic dividends and remove poverty from the midst of plenty, William Aberhart is now trailing that old evil-smelling red herring in front of the people.

If the Social Credit government wishes to establish itself in the good graces of the public, it can do so only by frankly admitting that it has signally failed to implement its promises and then getting down to administering the affairs of the province in an orthodox manner and thus make the best of a bad job. It can take seriously the findings of the special committee on unemployment; it can give ear to the resolutions passed by economic, political and social organizations to the end that true democracy shall continue in Alberta. It can, by doing these things, re-establish the credit, not only of the government but of private citizens who to-day, whether they care to admit it or not are paying, and paying heavily for Aberhartian experimentation. —Drumheller Plaindealer.

G. F. Powell, British envoy of Major C. H. Douglas as advisor to the Alberta Social Credit board, took exception to the publication of material relating to his trial in Alberta, appearing in Cavalade, a British news weekly. On the same page as the reading matter appeared a picture of the backside of a man in "partial dress. Mr. Powell claims the picture purports to be a back view of himself. Declaring that he has never appeared in any court in England, Mr. Powell said that he had written his son, who is a practising barrister in London, to take up legally the question of the publication of the picture.

ALBERTA EDITOR AND HIS CRITICS

How an editor of an Alberta country weekly had an innings with reader critics who are Social Credit partisans is recounted in an entertaining story in the Lac Ste. Anne Chronicle. Opportunity to clear up unfounded complaints against the press as represented by the home town paper particularly was put to good use by Editor John D. Skinner.

Although the Chronicle is a young paper, the first published at Sanguine, the editor is a veteran who has pioneered in a number of western outposts.

The meeting occurred when the editor tumbled at the town cafe and he found the place filled with delegates to the annual Social Credit district gathering.

Complaint that the editor had rejected Social Credit news was hurled. To this he issued a denial coupled with a challenge to any delegate to submit proof. It was not met.

Editor Skinner, explained, however, that his news columns were not open for the spreading of propaganda likely to mislead the people.

"Then you do not believe the $25 monthly dividend will be paid?" asked a delegate.

"No, and I have yet to find the man or woman who could explain how it can be done," frankly replied the editor.

However, space would gladly be provided to anyone who could show how Alberta could pay dividends and at the same time reduce taxation and the cost of living, he said.

Offer of space for Hon. E. C. Manning to show how the chartered banks operating in Alberta could pay a tax levy of $2,000,000 "without costing them a cent," was also made.

The charge that the press was publishing falsehoods was advanced. Although the editor of the Chronicle asked for one specific instance wherein he had knowingly published an untrue statement, none was offered.

Most of the delegates took part in the discussion and some quite freely. But Editor Skinner knows small town nature and evidently retained proper restraint, for the story says: "the best of good feeling prevailed throughout." —Printer and Publisher.

The largest horse in the world, Brooklyn Supreme, is owned by C. G. Good, of Boone, Ia. It weighs 3,080 pounds, and $8,000 has been offered for it.

After all that is happening in Alberta, Social Credit candidates should have a glorious time in Saskatchewan. Should have sent Powell and Unwin down there to do a little campaigning before entering upon their jail terms.

According to G. H. Powell's agreement with the Social Credit board, he receives no salary, but is allowed $12 a day for expenses. There can be no dispute about his salary while he is being entertained by the government at Fort Saskatchewan, but will his expense allowance continue while the government is providing him with board and lodging? —Nanton News.

The Drumheller Review remarks: "No, Premier Aberhart, we do not suffer from chronic grouching; but please tell us how to be an optimist under present conditions in Alberta? Never mind the 'Fifty Big Shots'—they are like yourself and have no financial worries. But thousands and thousands in Alberta are not in your class. They have hardening of the financial arteries, while their financial bloodstream is drying up."

The Coleman Journal this week remarks: Reggie Jones, timekeeper at the International mine, must have felt much like the thermometer he reads daily at the mine office, below zero these days, for he had to lay off for a day or two with a severe cold. Tuesday and Wednesday mornings it registered 21 below zero. Of course, Blairmore can always say it's colder there, even if it registered 50 below

Canadian dollars for imported goods were distributed among 75 "foreign" countries in the six months ended September, 1937, apart altogether from the money used for imports from the British Empire comprising 37 "countries," according to a tabulation in government statistics.

An editor of one of our exchanges says that he and his wife disagree materially. She reads what others write and he writes what others read. She keeps the devil out of the house to the best of her ability, while he detains him on all occasions and should not go to press without him. She knows more things than she writes and he writes more things than he knows.

By their purchases of imported foods Canadians are generous contributors to the pay envelopes of workers in other countries, judging by a survey of imports in 1937 included in statistics showing the trade of Canada. At the same time, as they send money abroad, they contribute through taxes to the support of their own unemployed on the relief of which over $600,000,000 has been spent since 1930, official records show.

WHICH IS "RIGHT"?

"Why do you drive on the wrong side of the road here in England?" an American asked an Englishman the other day. To which the Englishman replied with quiet uncton and reserve:

"Pardon me, but why do you think we drive on the wrong side of the road? Isn't it possible that it's you Americans who drive on the wrong side of the road, even if it is the right side; while we Englishmen drive on the right side, even if it is the left side."

And this little story in its several implications recalls the proud father and mother watching the new recruits marching by during the World War, and remarking: "There they go—And aren't they all marching fine! But they're all out of step except our Johnnie."

Mrs. Margaret Evaline Tripp, a Macedonian old timer, 74 years of age, was found dead in a rocking chair before the fire in her home. She evidently died in her sleep. She had lived alone for a considerable time.

More than $100,000 have been collected by Calgary district Chinese for China. When the collection plate reached a young Chinese lad from Rosedale, he placed $40 on it. Then he rose to his feet and appealed to the crowd: "Don't buy Japanese goods. Every fifty-cent purchase you make helps to kill one Chinese woman or baby."

Messrs. Unwin and Powell must serve the sentence handed down by Mr. Justice Ives, decided the Alberta Supreme Court of five judges unanimously. Powell will serve six months and then be deported back to England. Unwin will serve three months, and then probably be ousted from the government. Powell was one of the costly importees brought in as "specialists" or "experts" by the Alberta Social Credit regime. Unwin was Social Credit member for Edmonton provincial constituency. The unanimous verdict permits of no further appeal.

To make money under Canadian farming conditions calls for plenty of speedy, thrifty power... not sport-model lines or trick features, but proved performance and proved economy... not merely operating costs when new, but TOTAL cost over many years. Hundreds of reports by owners of Case tractors 4 to 8 years old show that Case has cut power costs to the lowest levels in tractor history.

Call on your Case dealer for facts and figures. See how Case gets fast, flexible power from a wide variety of low-cost fuels... any standardized tractor fuel from distillates to gasoline. See how Case tractors have run 4 to 8 years at upkeep averaging less than one cent an hour on low-cost fuels... how their owners expect them to give 10 to 17 years of work. Compare your costs with theirs... see how much you can save in 1938 and for years to come by changing to Case NOW.

There have been times when people of Alberta were prevented from doing anything towards earning a livelihood on a Sunday. Yet Aberhart's Sunday broadcast is nothing else but a straight piece of business in his interest.

HILLCREST HAPPENINGS

Mr. W. Hutchison has returned from a business visit to Montreal, where he was appointed general manager of the Hillcrest Collieries Ltd., succeeding Wm. Stevenson.

The stork was a Hillcrest visitor on Wednesday, leaving a son at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. White.

In the first game of the C.N.P. Intermediate Hockey League play-offs on Friday, Hillcrest defeated Blairmore 4-2.

Mrs. A. Hallworth, of Bellevue, is a patient in the Hillcrest hospital.

Mrs. J. Penn, entertained a number of friends on Friday evening. What was played, prizes going to Mrs. W. Flaher, first; Mrs. W. Adlam, second, and Mrs. J. Penn, senior, third.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Stevenson left Hillcrest Thursday by car for Calgary, where they will take up residence.

A miscellaneous shower was held in the Catholic hall on Friday evening, in honor of Mrs. T. Leason (nee Helen Kovach). Mrs. Leason was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts. At the white prize games went to Mrs. W. Makin and Mrs. J. Semanick.

Dr. G. B. Rose was a Calgary visitor during the week.

A very successful whist drive was held in the Catholic hall on Monday evening, under the auspices of the Social Credit group. The cash prizes went to Mrs. M. Hamaluk, first; Mrs. H. O. Westrup, second, and Mrs. E. Norton, third.

They haven't even Social Credit to worry about in Nova Scotia.

In Alberta, according to the All-nut literature, "the people have demanded certain rights, a dividend of $25 a month, personal freedom and a lower cost to live. The technicians, servants of the people, are providing the methods intended to fill the demands of the people, etc." and for a measly consideration of a fortune in but a few years while our starving-in-the-midst-of-plenty people are still starving; and with higher taxation their cost of living is still mounting higher.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

STORY TELLING

It's the story-telling picture that carries real human interest appeal.

ALMOST all of us have had the experience of calling on friends who persist in getting out their collection of snapshots and parading them before the eyes of their defenseless guests.

Now please bear in mind that I harbor no thoughts of this practice as being a breach of social etiquette. On the contrary, I am for it. But—there are many kinds and classes of snapshots. There are, for instance, the snapshots that are very good as far as exposure, sharpness and composition are concerned but with practically no human interest appeal. We can class these as record pictures.

Have you ever heard of story-telling snapshots? I'll wager that many of you haven't. For that reason this week's Snapshot Guild will be devoted to story-telling pictures.

From the cradle to the grave we hear stories—like them. All through our lives we retain our interest in story-illustrations. It is to this appeal that takes us to the movies and causes us to look through the pages of daily newspapers and magazines for pictures that tell stories of human activities.

When it comes to taking snapshots, however, so many seem to forget about story-telling subjects. They pick up their cameras and just shoot. There is a better way to take pictures.

There is a vast difference between

Father: "Is there anything worse than being old and bent?"
His Son: "Yes, dad; to be young and broke."

Excitable Invalid: "Mary, has the chemist sent that sleeping draught for me?"
"No, ma'am."

"It was so cold where we were," boasted the Arctic explorer, "that the candle light froze and we couldn't blow it out."

"Oh, that's nothing," said his rival. "Where we were the words came out of our mouth in chunks of ice, and we had to fry them to find what we were talking about."

There was a hold-up at a busy London crossing and the traffic was getting into a jam. In front of one of the waiting lines of cars and buses was a luxurious limousine, and its occupant could not restrain her impatience. Leaning out of the window she cried in imperious tones:

"Officer, I demand that you let me proceed. I am the wife of a cabinet minister."

The Scotch policeman turned to her with a tolerant smile. "Lady," said he, "I couldn't see that evin if you were the wife of a Presbyterian minister."

BELLEVUE HAPPENINGS

The death occurred in Bellevue on Sunday last of Mrs. Verona Kuban, beloved wife of Mr. J. Kuban. Deceased was 43 years of age, being born in Czechoslovakia. She had been in poor health for some time. She is survived by her husband, three children and one sister. The remains were laid to rest in Our Lady of Lourdes cemetery on Tuesday forenoon. Sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved ones.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Christie returned last week end from a several days' visit to Calgary.

Fred Piggett is confined to his home through illness. Albert Green spent the week end in Calgary.

The death occurred at Burnis on Wednesday morning of Mrs. T. Schmied, an oldtimer of the district. The news proved to be quite a shock to Bellevue, as it was not known that Mrs. Schmied had been ill. She is survived by her husband, one son, Tony, a member of the Bellevue teaching staff, and two daughters, one residing at home, and Mrs. George Liebergal, residing here. Funeral took place this morning at Bellevue, and the remains were laid to rest in Our Lady of Lourdes cemetery.

Seventeen fish reduction plants were in operation in Canada last year. Couldn't have been any of 'em in Alberta, for the fish caught by local experts during the year were just as large as ever.

The federal bye-election in East Edmonton in March will afford Mr. Aberhart another opportunity to prove that he has 95 per cent of the people of Alberta behind his economic theory.

If Aberhart ever hopes to collect an extra impost from Alberta banks, he'll have to get a move on; for many of them are closing up and moving their staffs to more favorable territory—outside of Alberta.

Clyde Gillies and Frank Collicutt, presidents of the northern and southern sections of the People's League of Alberta, resigned last week end, so that they would be free to retain membership on the provincial unity council.

A young lawyer, pleading his first case, had been retained by a farmer to prosecute a railway company for having killed twenty-four hogs. He wanted to impress the jury with the magnitude of the injury. "Twenty-four hogs, gentlemen. Twenty-four hogs, gentlemen!—twenty-four, twice as many as there are on this jury."

The Pincher Creek Echo remarks: "The legislature meets again this week, and we do not envy the government's task of having to create ballyhoo, so that the rank and file will not ask too many leading questions. New taxation will have to be introduced, and it is hoped that the late sales tax will not be brought back, or at least not in the form of nuisance as it was formerly. But it takes money to keep a Propaganda Board and Experts going, and it is hard to say who is the government today, the Cabinet, Caucus or the Social Credit Board."

Wanted:
A Market for Flour

IT MAY BE SAID with truth that it would be better for Canada if the British market would buy all our wheat in the form of flour. We then could give employment to as many persons as are now employed in the milling of our wheat in Britain. But it cannot be said that this would be better for the Motherland for she now has within her shores an industry which in part offsets the disadvantage of not growing enough wheat and other grains to feed her people.

THE CANADIAN cotton-textile industry is similar. The Weather Man permits us to grow no cotton even though we recently have learned to grow tobacco. But we have within the Dominion a cotton-textile industry which employs more than twenty thousand persons. And they are employed with fewer layoffs than in most other industries. Dominion Textile Company Limited is a part of this industry which helps to offset the fact that ours is a country whose industries often have sharp ups and downs from season to season.

THE COTTON-TEXTILE INDUSTRY in Canada is a factor in maintaining the Dominion as a cohesive whole. No finer cotton goods—or cotton-rayon—are produced anywhere than in the mills of this company.

"And where is this Punder you speak of so highly?" inquired the earl.

"I am Punder."

"How do you do?" said the earl.

"Will you sit down?"

"I'll stand."

"As you wish, Mr. Punder; but please don't point your stick at me like that. Reminds me of a cannon."

Punder paid no heed to this request.

"What's all this about him taking the castle?" he demanded, raking Ernest with a bovine glare.

"May I present Mr. Ernest Bingley?" said the earl. "One of the American lot."

"I might have guessed it," he said.

"A Yank! They push in everywhere."

"Like Punders?" murmured the earl.

Punder chose to ignore this. He addressed Ernest—

"Let me tell you that whoever you are and whatever you are you can't have this place from under Punder's nose."

"My dear Mr. Punder," said the earl, "let me speak for Mr. Bingley and say that your nose was not even on the distant horizon when he and I came to terms."

"So that London solicitor of yours a fool or a knave or both?" Punder demanded.

"Neither," returned the earl, and he said it with warmth. "I advise you, Mr. Punder, not to make such suggestions. They are slanderous and probably actionable."

"I was just asking," said Punder.

"I had a bit of a chat with him and he said he'd write you."

"And so he did," said the earl.

"Then struck by a disturbing thought, he said, 'Dear me! I remember now—he must have mentioned you—but he will write in long-hand—he's of the old school, you know—and he'll tell me all of the name.'"

"Well, then, what about it?" asked Punder.

"What about what?"

"Me and the castle."

"You may go through it from stem to stern, if you wish to, Mr. Punder."

"I've seen enough of it to know I want it," said Punder.

"I'm afraid you are too late, Mr. Punder," said the earl. "This gentleman got here first. Audacious fortune jivat, you know."

"I don't know," said Punder.

"Meaning, in round numbers, 'first come, first served,'" said the earl.

"Now look here," said Punder, "that Scotch lawyer of yours gave me to understand that I could rent the place, with an option to buy, and I gathered that if I made a thumping good offer, you'd sell like a shot."

"It is not my intention," said the earl, steadily, "to sell Bingley Castle like a shot or anything else. It remains in the family."

FRUIT-A-TIVES

"That's what you think," said Punder.

"Correct me if I'm wrong by all means," said the earl.

"What Punder wants, Punder gets," asserted the owner of that name.

"How nice for Punder," said the earl.

"And I want this."

Punder waved a big hand in a gesture which included the castle and its grounds.

"Nothing doing," said the earl.

"That's what you think," said the earl.

"I wish you wouldn't keep saying that," said the earl.

"And when I have it," went on Punder, "I'll just modernize it up a bit. Cut down a few trees. Smarten the place up. When I've got a couple of thousand quid on paint and plumbing you don't know the old place."

"Shouldn't want to," said the earl. Ernest glanced at Lady Rosa, and saw, in her face, a look of grave concern.

"How much?"

Punder pointed his cannon hat at Ernest and discharged the question point blank at him.

"I beg your pardon, sir," said Ernest, "but I'm only the tenant."

"You're an American, aren't you?" said Punder in third-degree tones.

"I am."

"Then you know what 'how much?' means."

"I do," said Ernest, stiffly.

"Well, then, how much?"

"Is this a game?" asked the earl.

"How much for what?" asked Ernest.

"For your option or whatever you have on this place," said Punder.

When Ernest was slow in replying, Punder rushed on—

"Gouge me," he said. "I know you Yanks. If I'd known one of you was after this place I wouldn't have stopped off at Bristol yesterday to buy a cheese plant there. You get here first. All right. That's business. Gouge me."

He moved his thick chest close to Ernest as if the gouging were to be of a physical nature.

"But I don't want to gouge you, Mr. Punder," said Ernest.

"Oh, no?" moaned Punder. "And you a Yank! Hah! Innocent as a lamb you are."

"Two lambs," put in the earl.

"I see through you," Punder said, fixing Ernest with so searching an eye that Ernest felt as if he were being X-rayed. He began to perspire. He did not want to be seen through. He waited for the words which would expose him as a sham.

"You and your cute little games," moaned on Punder. "You knew Punder had his eye on this castle. It's common talk in the City. So you sneaked down here, tied it up, and now you think you have me by the ears."

"Mr. Punder," said Ernest, "you are mistaken. I haven't got the castle. I don't want to have you by the ears. I don't want to sneak down here. I'd no idea you were interested in the castle. In fact, until a minute ago, I never heard of you in my life."

This imputation of anonymity caused Punder to purple and swell in an alarming way.

"Never heard of Punder, hey?" he bellowed. "Well, you've heard of him now and you'll hear of him again."

"Really, now, Mr. Punder," said the earl, soothingly, "you must not excite yourself. You might burst. I shouldn't care to have that happen, not in my breakfast room, anyhow."

"Nobody's going to bamboozle Punder," thundered the pickle magnate.

"Of course, not," put in the earl, as if he were a nurse speaking to a child. "The ideal Bamboozle Punder? I should think not."

"What do you call it then," demanded Punder, "letting a Yank do me out of my castle?"

"Is it your contention that you have a legal right to the place?" asked the earl.

"Can't see, perhaps," grudgingly admitted Punder.

"Well, then, you must take your medicine like a little man."

"That's what you think," said Punder.

"In as few words as possible, 'Yes,'" said the earl.

"That's what you—"

The earl held up his hand.

"Please, Mr. Punder," he said.

"I'm sorry you had the trip down here for nothing. So, as your time must be valuable—"

"Guinea a minute."

"Really? At least one pound ten I'd have said. But you know, of course."

"I know what I want, too," said Punder. "And I know how to get it, too."

"In this case," said the earl, "I don't see."

"You've got a family motto."

"We have, Mr. Punder. It is 'In Omnia Paratus'—meaning the Bingleys are ready for anything."

"Well, I've got a motto, too," said Punder, "and I made up mine myself. It's not Greek, it's plain English and it is, 'Nothing Stops Punder.'"

"Pithy," said the earl.

"May I say something?" said Ernest.

"I've been thinking about the situation," said Ernest. "I don't want to be unfair to you, sir, or to anybody. Perhaps, since I rented the castle through what might be called a misunderstanding, I should step aside and let you have it."

"I thought so," said Punder. "It is a ramp. Hah! Another of those American hold-ups. Well, how much?"

He whipped out a check-book as if he were drawing a pistol.

A faint sound escaped from Lady Rosa. It might have been a moan.

Ernest's eyes travelled to her troubled face.

"Nothing," he said.

"Nothing?"

"I mean I'm going to keep the castle."

"Oh, yes?"

Punder pushed his big face close to Ernest's.

Ernest met his eyes.

"Oh, YES!" said Ernest. And then he lost his temper. Never in his life he had lost it before; so now, while he was about it, he made a good job of it.

"And since it is my castle, you get the hell out of it, you big stiff," he shouted.

"Easy, Ernest," said the earl.

"Easy, my eye," cried Ernest. "Crump!"

"Yes, sir?" said the hovering Crump.

A Robot Sales Brain

Records Sales And Gives Receipts In A Few Seconds

A new kind of electrical brain to substitute for the sales clerk's slip and cash register check in department stores was announced to the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

This sales brain was made by L. F. Wierdoff, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, which in the past has produced mechanical brains to do things like figuring out where a 16-inch shell is going to hit and solving third degree differential equations.

The "gray matter," for a good sized department store, would be about 300 machines, electrically connected. This network not only records a sale and gives the customer a receipt in five seconds, but does much of the bookkeeping on the transaction. It can handle a large number of sales simultaneously.

The brain is operated by the sales clerk with a transmitting machine resembling a cash register. When a sale is made, a card punched to resemble the spots on a domino, taken from the article sold, is slipped into the transmitter, along with two punched tokens, one identifying her and the other the cashier.

The transmitter automatically sorts these, telegraphs the information to recording machines in a central office and pushes out a domino-like card which is the customer's receipt.

On the card is the date and amount of sale. The domino punches are a code, identifying goods and inventory prices.

The brain does its neatest trick with charge accounts. Charge customers are furnished with small punched tokens. The positions of the holes identify the customers.

One of these tokens goes into the transmitter, in place of the cashier's token, when a charge sale is made. The electrical network telegraphs this token to a separate battery of machines, manned by operators who have all the customer accounts handy. If the account is "good," the operator presses a button labeled O.K. The brain thereupon completes the transaction as for a cash customer.

Lawyers and clerks have the best prospect of living to a great age in Great Britain, according to statistics.

CHEST COLDS

Relieve Their Misery This Proved Way

WHEN there's a cold to treat—especially if it's a chest cold—there's no time to experiment. You relieve the misery with the treatment that has been doubly proved for you.

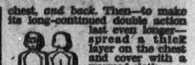

Here's What To Do: It's best to stay in bed and get lots of rest. Eat lightly, drink plenty of water, and keep environment regular. And use your dependable Vicks VapoRub without delay.

VapoRub has been proved by everyday use a more homes than any other medication of its kind—further proved by the largest clinical tests ever made on colds. (Full details in every VapoRub package.)

Only Vicks give you proof like this. VapoRub is direct external treatment. No "dosing," no stomach upset. Just massage it on throat, chest, and back. Then—to make its long-continued double action last even longer—spread a thin layer on the chest and cover with a warm cloth.

No Long Waiting for Relief to Begin... Almost before you finish rubbing, you begin to feel warm and comfortable. As VapoRub goes to work direct through the skin like a poultice. At the same time its medicated vapors, released by the warmth of the body, are carried direct to the irritated air-passages with every breath.

This double action loosens phlegm—relieves irritation and coughing—helps break local congestion. And long after restful sleep comes. VapoRub keeps on working.

Leaves Money To Village

Little Community In England Receives Fortune From Shopkeeper

Miss Annie Shaw is dead. London may not know, nor will Canada care very much. But the little village of Weston-on-Trent has been surprised out of its rural complacency to find that the village shopkeeper left the community £18,000 ($30,000).

And £18,000 in this village is a lot of money, enough to build a village hall, put a peal of bells in the parish church, improve the village green and still have some "for charitable purposes beneficial to the inhabitants as a community." Miss Shaw wished for those particular things.

No one knew Miss Shaw had that much money. She retired several years ago, but her shop only closed its doors. She lived on in a sitting room behind.

Ottawa Farmer As Good Crop Will Produce As Good Crop As Ever

Dr. E. S. Archibald, director of the central experimental farm at Ottawa, told the annual meeting of the Ontario Plowmen's Association at Toronto "the story the west is doing is perfectly ridiculous."

Wheat production in the prairies had been valued at $7,150,000,000 in the past 20 years, Dr. Archibald said, and the next 20 years there will be another $7,000,000,000 wheat crop.

Postmistress At Eighty-Eight

Mrs. Helen Keys Does Work At Brewer's Mills, Ontario

Mrs. Majestic's mail is handled daily at Brewer's Mills postoffice in Ontario by Mrs. Helen Keys, aged 88 years, who, it is believed, is the oldest postal official in Canada.

Mrs. Keys, who is the widow of James Keys, is not only the postmistress in name, but actually does the work and does it well. Her husband was postmaster previous to 1928, when he died, at the age of 84.

The Postoffice Department appointed his widow his successor, and she has carried on the duties ever since.

In addition to handling the mail for the people who call at the office, Mrs. Keys had to supervise the rural delivery. Her hearing is good, she sees well, and she writes a good hand.

Boy Witness Took No Chances On Court Appearance

Some time ago a friend attended court to hear a case in which he was interested. A small boy of about 10 was called to appear as witness for his father; he was an undersized lad, clad in a coat and trousers which were very much too large for him.

The judge looked steadily at this strange apparition and demanded brangely to be told why he had come to court in such garments.

The boy, rather frightened, produced a printed notice and drew attention to the fact that he was commanded to attend court that day "in his father's suit!"—London Evening News.

One Million People

ARE PROTECTED BY THE GREAT-WEST LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY

GREAT-WEST POLICYHOLDERS and their families number approximately one million people. The following facts will interest them and their families.

LIVING POLICYHOLDERS received over $11,000,000 in 1937. The Company has paid more than $120,000,000 in policyholders and beneficiaries since it was founded in 1881.

1537 POLICYHOLDERS died in the year more than $2,000,000 was paid to beneficiaries.

NEW BUSINESS placed over $10,000,000—again shows an increase.

REVENUES IN 1937 were $2,000,000—$2,000,000—a substantial gain during the year.

THE ASSETS also show a gratifying increase. They belong almost exclusively to policyholders and their families.

LIBERAL PARTICIPATION RETURNS to policyholders are being continued.

STEWARDSHIP is the Company's watchword. The year's figures indicate the trust and increasing faith in which shareholders operate and show the importance of the small savings of many people who gathered together in a co-operative enterprise.

Some of these experts could well go to Alberta University to learn something.

We have not yet received a copy of Mr. Aberhart's new official mouth-piece.

If Aberhart is so bent on doing the impossible, why not wipe those spots off the sun?

To develop a pearl, all a clam has to do is to turn a complete somersault.

G. W. Webber, of Todd Creek, was a business visitor to Blairmore and Lethbridge last week end.

The world's greatest joke is an Alberta fisherman telling what is purported to be a true story.

C. H. Cahan, junior, Vancouver lawyer, has been sentenced to serve seven years in jail, having been convicted of armed bank robbery.

Pat Conroy, vice-president of District 18 of the U.M.W. of A., was in town from Calgary over the week end, conferring with local officials.

The Blairmore juveniles defeated Macleod Blue Boys 2-9 the early part of the week in an exhibition hockey game.

No new moon in February, it is announced. Anyway, we are quite satisfied with the one we have, if we could but see it.

A Scotchman bet a local guy twenty cents that there were no spots on the sun. And it cost the other guy $400.00 to find out.

Take it from Mr. Aberhart, and keep close. Forget the fact that you are starving in the midst of his plenty.

The new East Coulee United church will be dedicated during Easter week. The church is to be named "Bethel United Church of Canada."

J. W. Barnett, secretary of the Alberta Teachers' Association, says there is now an actual shortage of teachers in the province.

Charlie says that bunch in Edmonton don't know yet what a democrat is, and that if they'd come down to Blairmore he could teach them, and also sell them a few.

Joe wants to know why most of the Scotch visiting curlers have their mouths open most of the time. Well, they're taking all they can get—even our free air.

Able is now boosting for another Social Credit official organ. He's advertising that paper over the air at the expense of many poor suckers in Alberta.

A little spot, measuring six feet less than 120,000 miles across, has been discovered on the face of the sun. Another one appears to be about the size of this earth.

The Social Credit free publicity declares: "the people are not interested in methods; it is results they want, and results they demand." And so far in Alberta we are getting neither.

Andy Hamilton, who passed away suddenly at Fernie on January the 28th, had been a resident of Fernie for thirty-six years. Prior to 1902 he resided for a while at Macleod.

The coroner's jury at Fernie returned a verdict that J. E. Dicks came to his death through a hemorrhage of the brain, which may have been started by a fall on the ice, while playing a curling game.

Mallard ducks bear a close resemblance to domestic ducks. In England, mallards are called stock ducks, because all domestic duck stock, except one or two varieties, descended from this bird.

The Blairmore Juveniles defeated Macleod 11-2 early in the week.

Aberhart simply cannot understand why the poor down-and-outs in this province should worry.

Robert Brown, of Crows' Nest, entered hospital at Cranbrook last week.

Thirty years ago S. G. Blaylock was appointed superintendent of the St. Eugene Mine at Moyle.

The town of Vulcan showed a surplus of $2,420.81 in its financial statement for 1937.

Training flights are planned over the Vancouver-Lethbridge-Winnipeg routes.

F. T. Edwards, editor of the Pincher Creek Echo, has been elected mayor of Pincher Creek by acclamation.

No. 8 issue of volume one of the New Horizon, published by the provincial Liberal Association, has reached us.

Nathan Puschle, well known C.N.R. conductor, died at Port Mulgrave, N.S., on February 1st, aged 83. He retired from railway life in 1926.

Hillcrest Intermediates won the Crows' Nest Pass League championship on Monday night by defeating the Blairmore Bears 5 to 4.

Wonder how many local guys invested money in the Calgary official organ of Social Credit. What is your interest worth now?

The annual financial statement of the town of Grande Prairie showed a bank credit balance at the end of 1937 of around $11,000.

Miss Elaine Ennis left for Calgary by Tuesday's train, where she enters the Holy Cross hospital as nurse-in-training.

It was just "yow!" the way Trail handed it out to Coleman last week end. The game had to quit when the score card's limit of 11 was reached.

Milton Robinson yesterday received word from Quebec, stating that his brother Gordon had died there. Gordon was about forty years of age and was born in Cowley.

The home of the Earl and Countess of Egmont was totally destroyed by fire near Calgary on Monday morning. Damage is estimated at between fifteen and twenty thousand dollars.

Charles F. Harris, Lethbridge solicitor, suffered a stroke while on a business visit to Calgary last week end, and has since been in a serious condition.

Mrs. W. J. Bartlett went to Crossfield last week end, where on Wednesday of this week she attended the golden wedding anniversary of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Fenwick.

Charles A. Barber, publisher of the Chilliwack Progress at Chilliwack, B.C., was married recently at Bellingham, Wash., to Mrs. Annie Laurie Gibson, formerly of Winnipeg and Calgary.

Mayors were returned by acclamation in three Nova Scotia towns, Westville, New Glasgow and Stellarton. New Glasgow showed a surplus of $137,428.89 for the year 1937, an increase of $12,000 over 1936.

The suggestion has been made that Mr. Aberhart could contribute something towards dividends for a few by cutting down his salary to what he was accustomed to receive as a school teacher.

William Eddy, of Screwdriver Creek, was injured rather seriously last week. He was loading straw on a wagon and rack, when the team balked. He fell, and the wheels passed over his chest. He sustained several broken ribs.

YEARS OLD
(A true story)

One of our customers said recently, "Why don't you tell parents that the way to please their children is to let them open a savings account themselves? My little daughter aged six, came to her mother the other day, and said she wanted to go to the bank herself and open an account. Her mother, being wise, called up the Bank Manager, told him the story, and said that her small girl would be in to see him soon. Sure enough, in came the child, clutching a little purse. Signed her name four times [which she told her mother afterwards was foolish] and got her bank book. Did it all herself!"

That young lady has the right idea. She regards the bank as HER bank. You can make it yours.

Coleman are now considering the installation of an artificial ice system for their arena.

That famous Aberhart term, "Voice of the people," has been adopted at Cranbrook, but not by any foolheads.

People of the province enjoyed another happy hour on Sunday afternoon last. Able wasn't on the air.

They're finding pearls in oysters at Edmonton. Probably that's the first sign of dividends.

Fernie will stage an ice carnival at their arena next Wednesday.

A. J. Hooke, Social Credit M.L.A. for Red Deer, has been appointed to succeed J. H. Unwin as whip.

Dora Perassini received word last week of the death of his twenty-year-old daughter in Italy.
